

German family-owned REMONDIS Industrie Service has acquired BMT Mercury Technology from co-shareholders Active Capital Company and E-Capital

Active Capital Company (“ACC”) and E-Capital have divested their shares in the international mercury- and NORM contaminated waste specialist BMT Mercury Technology (“BMT”) in May 2024. Both shareholders originally acquired their shares in 2013 and supported the company’s professionalisation and international growth in order to meet market demand. The acquisition enables REMONDIS to further grow as a full-service provider in hazardous waste management.

Mels Huige, partner at ACC: “Both E-capital and ourselves are pleased to announce the sale of BMT to the family-owned REMONDIS. The business activities and culture of BMT and REMONDIS perfectly align, and we trust we have found the right partner for BMT in its next phase of growth. The sale of BMT marks the last divestment of Active Capital Company Fund II.”

Paul Vorstermans, CEO of BMT: “We are proud to be part of REMONDIS Industrie Service. Together BMT and REMONDIS are able to strengthen and grow their position in the hazardous waste market and offer a total solution to our customers”. Robert Sonnenschein, CEO of REMONDIS adds: “BMT offers the industrial cleaning and industrial service divisions of REMONDIS the basis and flexibility for the most sophisticated services for customers and represents the greatest possible disposal security in one of the most challenging waste segments.”

About BMT Mercury Technology

BMT specialises in the treatment, recycling and safe disposal of mercury- and NORM (Natural Occurring Radioactive Material) contaminated waste streams. The company has facilities in Farmsum (The Netherlands) and Bangpoo (Thailand). In both geographies there is a continuous focus on finding the safest, most sustainable and effective way of treatment, recycling and final disposal of the waste.

About REMONDIS Industrie Service

As a service provider for industry, commerce and public sector clients, REMONDIS Industrie Service has been an expert in the safe disposal of hazardous substances and hazardous waste for more than 40 years. With this experience, the company ensures that pollutants and non-recyclable waste are removed from the material cycles and disposed of in an environmentally friendly manner. In doing so, REMONDIS Industrie Service exploits all potential for recovery whenever it makes ecological and economic sense.

By returning recyclable materials to the economic cycle and making recycled raw materials available, resources can be conserved, energy saved, and greenhouse gas emissions avoided. As part of the REMONDIS family and integrated into a strong network of research, politics and business, REMONDIS Industrie Service drives knowledge transfer and forward-looking, sustainable developments. This means that professional and environmentally friendly waste treatment is offered from a single source at more than 100 locations worldwide with a state-of-the-art plant structure and organized logistics.
